THE GUNS MUST BE BOUGHT. The board spent some time in a careful review of this provision, which not only author-... Page 6 izes but directs the Secretary to purchase. Heretofore the board has acted merely in an advisory capacity, but in this instance the law places the expenditure of a very large sum—
$4,500,000—directly in its control. The phrase "at prices deemed fair to the manufacturer and to the best interests of the United States" complicates the case somewhat, as the presence of the Watervliet arsenal and factory as a government plant introduces an element of unusual complexity. For example it will be a quantum of the complexity of the second control of the control of ernment plant introduces an element of unusual complexity. For example, it will be a question for careful computation whether or not it will be to the best interests of the United States to accept a low but fair bid from a private manufacturer with the Watervliet plant idle, and therefore causing a useless consumption of interest on the vast sum there invested. This and other views of the inancial aspect of the problem renders the case of unusual deinancy, and the board, after discussing it at length for three entire sessions and during portions of other days.

Gen. Schofield to Meet the Members Next Saturday.

QUESTION WHETHER THE PLANT AT WATERVLIET ARSENAL CAN BE UTILIZED IN PREFERENCE TO GIVING A CONTRACT TO PRIVATE MANUPACTURERS

The board of ordnance and fortification, recently in session in New York, adjourned on As late as noon today members of Friday to meet on Saturday of this week, when Gen. Schofield, now on his way east on his bridal tour, will attend the session. The board, which convened July 13, was in session for eleven days and devoted most of its time to a consideration of the bids recently received at the War Department from three private firms for the construction of 100 high-power guns for the army. These bids were referred Page 3 to the board by the department under the terms of the ordnance and fortifi-Page 2

Gen. B. F. Cutcheon of Michigan, ex-mem-ber of Congress, attended this session of the board as a member, having recently been ap-pointed such by the President under the provisions of the recent ordnance appropriation act. The military members of the board have welcomed his advent, for he is thoroughly posted on military matters, particularly those relating to ordnance, which he has especially studied. He is familiar with all of the laws on the subject and has an intimate acquaintance with the state of the country's defenses today. His presence on the board, it is thought, will have a beneficial influence upon the minds of the appropriating. fluence upon the minds of the appropriating powers of Congress, which have hitherto been suspicious of the estimates of army officers.

Gen. Dumont will convene the board of supervising inspectors of steam vessels in extra session in this city on Monday. September 28, for the purpose of making a "series of experiments with such line-carrying projectiles and the means of propelling them as may be submitted."

SECRETARY PROCTOR'S EXPECTED RETURN.—
It is expected that Secretary Proctor will return to the city for a few days tomorrow night. There are several important matters awaiting his action in the War Department, including the appointment of the civilian and non-commissioned candidates for appointment in the army as second lieutenants who may have passed their examinations. The boards having charge have completed their work and have made their reports to the adjutant general, who is withholding the papers until the Secreof saving life, for a vessel stranded on a coast accessible to a life-saving station to be supplied with a line-carrying projectile and the means of propelling it as a means auxiliary to that provided by the life-saving station and the crew thereof. REPUBLICAN EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE FRANCE AND RUSSIA The Meeting Will Be Held at the Arlingto

The republican national executive committee will meet at the Arlington Hotel tomorrow, probably in the afternoon. The change of meeting place is sudden and unexpected. The place fixed at first was Philadelphia and quarters were engaged at the Continental Hotel. the executive committee did not know where they would meet. The report that a change had been made was current, but W. W. Dudley and Mr. Clarkson were among those who were in doubt as to whether or not they would go to Philadelphia.

Mr. Quay arrived last night and this morn ing engaged a parlor at the Arlington for the meeting. Mr. Clarkson came in on the boat from Norfolk this morning, expecting to take the train for Philadelphia.

IT WILL BE HELD HERE. Later in the afternoon Mr. Quay said positively that the meeting would be held at the Arlington tomorrow, and that he thought that the hour would be 4 in the afternoon. He refused to say anything further about his resignation.

The reason for the change of place of meet-ber of committeemen are in favor of refusing to accept his resignation.

The movement in this direction is said to have given rise to the air of mystery surrounding the subject of the meeting.

If Mr. Quay insists upon retiring it is supposed that the whole program will be carried out; Clarkson will be chosen chairman and either Fessenden or Mr. Payne will succeed Clarkson as vice chairman. OMAHA WANTS THE CONVENTION. Omaha is early to the front with a bid for the national convention. Coi. C. R. Scott is on all she can to get the convention.

I shall have to dissent from this grant for United States, in regard to the streets of the City of Washington, provides that— "No open space, public reservation or other public ground in the city of Washington, nor any portion of the public streets or svenues in said city, shall be occupied by any private person, or for any private purpose whatever."

The case of the District agt. Munroe turned upon this very point. The following extract from the opinion of Judge Cox seems to settle the question:

the question:

It is obvious that there is a broad distinction between transgressions of that act, of the kind which I have described, and the mere tem-

And I also understand that he is to pay a rental for the use of the pavement to the owner or occupant of the Howard House. If we are to violate the statute and the decision of the court we might at least have the rental for the use of the public.

Altogether I am opposed, for the above reasons, to the grant.

The posts of especial honor—those in, about and around the palace and little town of Peterhof—were guarded by the flower of the Russian army, the regiment of Preobrajensky and the Grenadiers, Chasseurs and Cossacks of the guard.

Early this morning the streets of this city be-Early this morning the streets of this city became alive with the sounds and movements of preparation for the great state dinner, and before the sun was well up the St. Petersburgers in all sorts of conveyances were by land and water hurrying westward to secure some coign of vantage from which, if possible, to catch a glimpse of the nation's guests. The sharply contrasting yellow and black of Russia and the blue, white and red of France were united in rosettes and other devices which ornamented the bosoms of thousands of the holiday makers.

The dinner given to the French sailors yesterday at the Cronstadt Exchange was marked by a lesser degree of official character than any of the previous festivities. During the entertainment the officers of the French fleet appeared upon the balcony of the exchange, where conormous crowds of people greeted them with frantic cheers and fought and struggled to get a piece of the tri-color flags which the French officers detached from the decorations of the exchange and threw among the populace, shouting at the same time "Vive la Russie." The people about the exchange responded to these cries with "Vive la France," and in every way the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. The crowds also several times insisted upon hearing the "Marseillaise."

PARIS' ONE SAD TOPIC The Frightful Railway Disaster Just Out

Paris, July 28.—The terrible excursion train ollision at St. Mande, near this city, is the feature of popular interest here today, dwarfing even the courtesies being extended to the French fleet at Cronstadt, and eclipsing the night-mare to Frenchmen generally known as the dreibund. the dreibund.

The newspapers of this city and the provinces are filled with harrowing details of the disaster by which over fifty people lost their lives and by which over 100 others were more or less seriously wounded. Such glassity railroad accidents as this one are not everyday oc-currences here and were popularly supposed to be confined to the United States. In fact on more than one occasion when the letails of some more than usually horrible railroad stove" set fire to the wreck and caused the roasting to death of numbers of wounded people who might otherwise have escaped from the disaster, have been received the English and continental newspapers have consoled themselves with the reflection that no such calamity was possible, or, to say the least, probable on European railroads, from the fact that their cars were only heated by hot water foot stools and, consequently, were safe from death-dealing conflagrations after collision. The St. Mande accident shows that these newspapers congratulated themselves a little too soon. Interest in the St. Mande horror is greatly increased by the fact that up to the present the official inquiry made has failed to establish clearly the real cause of the collision, which is attributed in turn to revenge, mal-ice, carelessness and incompetence according ice, carelessness and incompetence, according to the revelations of the hour. To the ouside observer the accident would seem to be due to a very great extent to carelessness, though other motives may have entered into the disaster. In suy case, the action of the firemen in drowning the roasted and wounded people who were im-prisoned beneath the wreck is most severely sondemned.

Seven additional people, victims of the collision, died last night, making a total of fifty dead accounted for, but the terribly consumed state of some of the remains found maker if probable that in some cases the heaps of cinders collected may be those of two people which have been counted as one.

The municipal authorities of St. Mande have decided that the luneral of the victims is to take place at 3 o clock tomorrow afternoon and there is no doubt that the ceremonies will be witnessed by one of the largest crowds ever gathered in the neighborhood of this city. The interment of the remains will take place in the
